

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A telecommunication module is provided which includes a system-data processor for carrying out at least one telecommunication activity, a control data processor for automatically executing at least one control command sequence stored in the telecommunication module, the control command sequence being 10 configured in such a way that it triggers the at least one telecommunication activity of the system processor during execution, and a first connector for connecting the telecommunication module to an external electronic device.